

FOR INTERNAL CHANGE MAKERS

THE ART OF FACILITATING

Facilitating is an art that you can learn. From design, mapping and engaging stakeholders, developing the skills needed to let a group discover direction and providing guidance simultaneously.

Are you an intrapreneur, creating movement in your organisation or guiding change processes? Would you like to learn how to design, facilitate and make these processes internally sustainable? Are you driven by a desire to create more connection and meaning? Then this development course is for you.

The Art of Facilitating is for people that are doing the work in organisations, guiding change, often navigating sticky processes and operating in complex organisations. This course will give you new perspectives on the ethics of change, group dynamics, systemic work, and discovering or deepening your approach, since you are the key instrument of change.

During a 4-day programme over a period of 4 months, we will guide you through different facilitation methods and frameworks that help overcome resistance and group insecurity, give space to the minority perspective, and help bring together conflicting interests in organisations. During this journey, you will get to know like minded people that are also working on systems change or are contributing in their way to organisational development.

1. YOU AS THE INSTRUMENT

- The 3 P's of facilitation
- Connecting with your own undercurrent

We start at the beginning. Using the Principles of facilitation, we look at various ways of shaping a process and means of preparation. We also look at you as a person, your approach to creating movement, and how you learn from others. We work with assumptions, roles, belief systems and what 'radical neutrality' means for a facilitator.

2. EMERGENT FACILITATION

- Guiding and steering group dynamics
- Collaborating for ownership

Emergent facilitation is about leading without an agenda. In other words, facilitative leadership. We will pay attention to the process of identifying people that you need, mapping what moves them and stands in their way. We will focus on converging agendas, opportunities and goals, and what the factor of time means in change processes. You will learn how to read resistance and building collaborative ownership from the start.

3. PROCESS KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS

- Facilitation techniques, frameworks and methods
- Build your tool-kit of activities

Here we we will deepen relevant frameworks and practical methods to guide processes. We will work with using the body and voice, and dialogue forms that are about hearing all perspectives. We will introduce you to the world of Deep Democracy, Open Space Methods, Systemic work, Experiential Learning, Theory U, and Human Centred Design. These are all methods and philosophies about working with change processes.

4. CREATE AND SUSTAIN MOVEMENT

- Prepare for the long term
- Shared ownership by design
- Facilitating your own mini-session

In the last module, we will dive more deeply into your context and what you need to bring forward your case or question. In a self-facilitated mini session, you will use the group for direct feedback on how to put what you learned into practice, and bring it back to your work reality.

ABOUT BETTER FUTURE

As impact consultancy we guide change processes all over the world, on the intersection of leadership, culture and strategy. We work with NGO's, semi-government and companies that want to take responsibility for people and the environment within their value chain. In the 20 years of our existence we have lead change programs in over 50 countries, with thousands of leaders. In this course we would like to share our lessons, mistakes, and insights that we have learned with our clients and partners.
